

The FCC should not implement any proposal that would lessen Indiana's Telephone Privacy law protections. On average prior to the Indiana Telephone privacy law, I would receive 3 to 5 phone calls per night usually during meal time, or if I didn't answer the phone on the first ring, there isn't anyone there when I pick up the phone. Since the law enactment I have not had any interruptions from unwanted telemarketers. I enjoy the peace and quiet of my home in the evenings knowing that when the telephone rings, it is someone whom I want to talk to, and not a telemarketer. I feel that the Indiana law is appropriate and protects the people who do not want to be bothered by the telemarketers. It is important to protect my privacy in my home by adopting laws such as the Indiana no call list. Thank you for your consideration! And PLEASE remember you are to protect MY Freedom instead of corporate america!

Sincerely,

Brian Stockman
